[OMITTED – Keynote and Plenary addresses 2012-2017. During this six-year period I delivered hundreds of keynote and plenary addresses across North Carolina and the rest of the country dealing with poverty, economic injustice, access to justice and education, federal courts, constitutional law and civil rights. They were frequently to large audiences – 500 to 5,000 attendees, occurred in New York, Los Angeles, San Francisco, Denver, Chicago, Cleveland, Washington DC, Atlanta, Dallas, Charlotte, Boston, etc. They include academic addresses the Harvard Law School (keynote, national Gideon 50th anniversary conference), Duke, Washington University, Colorado, Arizona, Wake Forest, NC Central, NC State, UNC-CH, and others. I delivered several plenary addresses and programs at the American Constitution Society national convention and the keynote at the national ACS student convention. In North Carolina, I have given poverty and economic injustice school-wide addresses at NC State, UNC-CH (social work, public health, education, public policy, honors program, international studies, law, business), Duke, NC Central, Western Carolina, Appalachian State, Fayetteville State, UNC-Greensboro, Wake Forest, Elizabeth City State, Elon, UNC-Charlotte, Queens, NC AT&T, Meredith, Peace and many other campuses and community colleges – and speeches in communities in every corner of the state. I also delivered the UNC-CH Phi Beta Kappa graduation ceremony address, the UNC Phi Beta Kappa Lecture, and the commencement address at the UNC-School of Social Work and (graduate student graduation) at the University of Arizona and the LGBT studies commencement at CU-Boulder.]
